Patients Doctor of Year

Dr. Lonnie A. Coffin, 69, of Farmington, Iowa, back at work after being named General Practitioner of the Year by the American Medical Association.

"Women are better patients than men," according to Dr. Lonnie A. Coffin, Family Doctor of the Year. "They'll do what you tell them, but men won't."

At 68, Dr. Coffin is a warm and happy man, busy with the health needs of more than 3,000 people in and around rural Farmington, Iowa. Enriched by 45 years of country doctoring, he is also a man who speaks his mind, a philosopher with concise and witty views on life. Here are a few of them:

On smoking: "It's undoubtedly bad for you. I gave it up after my coronary, and I've stopped to light one of his daily cigars. 'I've given it up several times since then.'"

On health: "The work of the voluntary health agencies makes me confident about the future. The National Foundation, for instance, which helped us eight years ago when a polio epidemic hit Farmington (three of Dr. Coffin's four grandchildren were stricken), is now applying its March of Dimes funds to problems like arthritis and birth defects. That's good news, and good health."

On sickness: "If you're sick, do what you can to get well, but try not to worry about it. If you worry, you'll feel worse and so will everybody around you."

On being sick at night: "We all get sicker at night. That's because we have more time to think about ourselves."

On drinking: "There are only certain people who should drink. Those who can both control it and afford it."

On fishing: "You can fish all day long and I like that. If you catch something, fine. If you don't, exaggerate."

On being a doctor: "I try to take care of people no matter what the hour, no matter where they live, no matter who they are. Where or when they get sick is not their fault."

On being a doctor named "Coffin": "Well, it's true that's what they carry you off in, but the fact is my name hasn't scared off too many patients."

HOME AGENT'S NOTES

By GLORIA CLAY
Home Demonstration Agent
Hancock County

Next time you buy a chicken, look at the wrapping or some where on the package to see if it bears the small round U. S. Inspected label. You will probably find it, for ever since the first of the year, all chickens going into interstate commerce have had to have U. S. Department of Agriculture official inspection.

This inspection is required by the Poultry Products Inspection Act, passed by the Congress last year. It went into effect January 1, 1959.

It requires the compulsory inspection by the USDA of all poultry and poultry products that move in interstate or foreign commerce and in certain areas of the United States.

Many of the tender, young broilers and fryers you've bought in the past have been inspected through arrangements by the processor. Under this new program, trained government inspectors check on the sanitation of the processing plants and examine every bird to be shipped across state lines.

You may find the U. S. Department of Agriculture inspected stamp on wing tags, outer wrap pers or boxes or on giblet wrap pers.

Check with your grocer to see if the chickens you buy from him are inspected.

Don't confuse this inspection with grading. If the poultry meat has passed inspection, you know it is wholesome food. Grading comes after inspection. Poultry grades are Grade A, Grade B and Grade C. The grade shows the tenderness and eating quality of the poultry. Look for the "shield" grade mark for this.

CLEAN HAIR A "MUST"

Yes, clean hair is a "must" for skin beauty!

A smooth complexion depends as much on having clean, healthy scalp as it does on washing your face properly. Shampoo your hair regularly, as often as needed.

This is usually once a week, for normal hair, every four days for oily hair, every 10 days for dry hair.

A GOOD POT OF GREENS

That's what a lot of folks get to wanting in the wintertime. And green leafy vegetables are important in meals, especially in the wintertime, because of their vitamins. They're a good source of both vitamin A and vitamin C.

In figuring how much greens you need for your family, plan on four or five servings from a pound of mustard or turnip greens, cabbage or collards. This allows the waste you discard and shrinkage caused by cooking.

Cook the greens with little more water than stays on the leaves after washing. Long cooking will make them limp and change the odor and flavor.

Check the prices of frozen and canned greens and compare with fresh ones. Which gives the least cost for each serving?

If you're finding cold weather hard to take, it's time for a diet check on carbohydrate foods.

A research report shows that these foods can be cold weather protectors. Best known are fruits, most vegetables, breads, cereals and milk. Be sure your bread and cereals are enriched or whole grain.

SOUP FOR COLD WEATHER

What's better than a bowl of hot soup on a cold day? Home made or canned soup. Did you ever try serving soup in a mug instead of a bowl?

Soup goes well with many meals, doesn't it? Or vegetables and meatstock soup makes a meal in itself.

If you're having soup canned, it pays to read the label as with every other produce. You will find the ingredients in the canned soup listed in descending order according to the amounts in the soup. There are more of the ingredients listed first in the soup than of those listed last.

In buying meat or meatstock soups, see how far down meat is listed in the ingredients. Or in buying cream soups, which is used, cream, milk or non-fat dry milk?

FEBRUARY: PLENTIFUL

Don't forget potatoes and canned peas as you plan your February menus and grocery shopping lists. They're headlines on the plentiful foods list this month and you should find supplies good and prices economical.

You have a long list of "plentiful" to select from this month. Be on the watch for good buys in pork, eggs, turkey, milk and dairy products, apples, celery, cabbage, walnuts, honey, peanuts and peanut products, dry beans and California artichokes.

Doesn't that list give you some ideas of foods to serve your family?

ONLY 100 CALORIES IN POTATOES

A medium size boiled, pressure cooked or baked Irish Potato has only about 100 calories in it. About the same number as a large apple or orange or half of a large grapefruit.

It's the oldest butter or gravy that we like with potatoes that increases the calories. The added fat used in frying potatoes can make them 2 to 4 times as high in calories as the same amount of baked or boiled potatoes.

KEEP THEM CLEAN

Once a week, fill a tub with water from your faucet and add a few drops of household bleach. Soak your potatoes in this water for 10 minutes. Then wash them in clean water. This will remove any dirt or wax that may be on the potatoes.

EMPLOYMENT WEEK TO BE HELD AT MISSISSIPPI STATE, MARCH 2

State College, Miss.—The second annual Mississippi Employment Week will be held at Mississippi State University beginning March 2, according to an announcement made today by President Ben Hilburn.

The first Mississippi Employment Week held last March was an outstanding success. This week is a concrete step aimed at insuring the employment within Mississippi of our graduating young people. Mr. Hilburn said Mississippi Employment Week is designed to bring State students and Mississippi employers together so the students will be better acquainted with employment opportunities and the employers will be better advised on the number and high standards of the students available for employment in Mississippi.

Activities of the week will be a joint effort between the Mississippi Employment Security Commission, the Mississippi Manufacturing Association, the Engineering and Industrial Advisory Committee of Mississippi State University, the Mississippi Economic Council, the Mississippi Municipal Association, the Miss. Farm Bureau Federation, and Mississippi State University.

When the first Mississippi Employment Week was started last year, President Ben Hilburn pointed out that many out-of-state firms send representatives to the campus each year for the purpose of interviewing students. "This special week will be reserved solely for Mississippi employers," he said.

Other features of the week's program will be forums during which outstanding business and public leaders will focus attention on Mississippi's job and economic opportunities.

"Mississippi Employment Week is a part of the never-ending program at Mississippi State to build our state through properly trained young people and through offering the services of this institution to industry and agriculture as an aid toward developing the state's resources," President Hilburn said.

the policy of non-duplication of services.

No application has been filed to any local agency such as the Jackson Appeals Review Board, for permission to solicit the residents of the state of Mississippi.

PRUNE SHRUBS THIS WINTER

Pruning is a stunting process whereby plants are reduced in size and kept in a desirable form or shape. Winter pruning, or dormant pruning, of flowering shrubs produces strong, vigorous shoots. Therefore, it is practiced to give new vigor to old, established shrubs. After growth begins in the spring, pruning does not have the same effect on the plant. Shrubs are pruned to remove dead, infested wood; to encourage new growth, bloom and fruit; and to preserve the proper balance between top growth and root system at the time of transplanting.
